Sabhan Adam (born 1972 in Syria) is a contemporary painter known for his raw, unsettling, and deeply expressive figurative works. Largely self-taught, Adam developed a distinctive visual language that explores the darker aspects of human nature, often depicting distorted, hybrid figures that exist between the human and the monstrous.

His work is characterized by an intense psychological depth, where themes of violence, transformation, and existential tension emerge through heavily textured surfaces and visceral brushwork. Drawing from personal experiences as well as broader socio-political realities, Adam's paintings evoke a sense of discomfort that challenges viewers to confront hidden fears and internal conflicts.

Since the early 2000s, Adam has exhibited widely across the Middle East, Europe, and internationally, gaining recognition for his uncompromising approach and powerful visual narratives. His works have been featured in major galleries and art fairs, and are included in prominent private and institutional collections.

Now based between Syria and Europe, Sabhan Adam continues to push the boundaries of figurative painting, offering a stark and unfiltered reflection on the human condition.
